					At the Ne Win Dinner tonight, dinner was served in the family dining room on tables seating 10--three tables. It was apparent that the President and Chairman Ne Win Ne Win had good private conversations and understanding because the atmosphere was very warm. (Dinner was made informal for two reasons-- Burmese national costume for the male appears to be a dress, hence the Chairman did not want to wear the national garb to the White House; and he also did not want to wear his military uniform--hence his request for informal dinner) The room was elegant, candlelight--chandelier turned low. An immediate spark of conviviality came from all three tables. The President gave a very warm toast to the Chairman and Madame Ne Win underlining the cause of Burmese independence and freedom respecting their neutrality in position.
